227 BJ Text:

“Mysterious lights appear before Arthur and John. The dead of night offers little explanation for such curiosities. Only the dregs of one’s memories and the unspoken help from you can help guide their fate. Of course, nothing is fair about this vote. No, there seems to be some unseen force manipulating and twisting the words. The choice was simple. Do you allow yourself... None of you managed to understand completely what was being offered...creatures of this world play fair. No...and so you flipped...remain...only for a moment longer...”

“Foolish mistakes happen to even the most seasoned adventurers. A shame Arthur left his bag behind, but with what Yorick knows, one cannot risk this information falling into the wrong hands. Plus, how could one part with a last picture of Faroe? A rather simple choice is before you. Your bag lay at the bottom of a willow tree, far enough away from the child and easy to grab. So of course, why don't you? Do you grab...(mistakes?) (find?) give in x7... (laugh) (How foolish)/(have fun)/(how fun).”

174 - chose to tell Noel true identity, tried to convince Noel to believe him about Butcher risk and caught him in disguise sneaking up on Daniel: vote to distract or run
Lighter appearance / use

98 - chose to travel deeper into the city, chatted about the past and potential future. John talked a bit about Lily, found injured buopoth Lily: vote to end her suffering or not interfere

Another chapter is here and Arthur is about to face his greatest threat yet.

Malevolent: Chapter 9

May 27, 2020

Fight to kill.

There is no easy way to make that something that wouldn't scar a mind. Arthur is not the strongest of wit but he is, for now, the one in charge. Let's see how he manages.
