

Dag May Go To Turkey Over Crisis

West Asks U. N. Chief To Take Part In Mideast Dispute

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—Seven Western powers, with the backing of the United States, today formally asked United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld to step into the Turco-Syrian crisis and to go to the Middle East personally, if necessary.

Japan introduced a measure asking action by Hammarskjöld after Syria formally proposed appointment of a seven-nation fact-finding commission to report to the General Assembly and the Security Council within two weeks.

The two resolutions injected new impetus to the Middle East debate in the 82-nation General Assembly.

The seven-power resolution, sponsored by Japan, Norway, Canada, Spain, Peru, Paraguay and Ghana, would have the Assembly express "confidence that the secretary-general will be available" to discuss the situation with Syria and Turkey in consultation "with such other representatives as may be useful and that he can proceed, if necessary, to the countries concerned."

Syrian Ambassador Farid Zein-eddine introduced Syria's resolution. The seven-power measure was put before the Assembly by Japanese Ambassador Koto Malsudaira.

There was a strong possibility that a third resolution, keeping the Turco-Syrian issue on the Assembly's agenda, but asking both countries to refrain from incitement, would be presented.

The Syrian resolution, put forward without co-sponsorship, would set up a commission to comprise two members named by Syria and two by Turkey with three to be chosen by common agreement between the two disputing countries.

The commission would be chosen, under the resolution, within three days of the measure's adoption.

Mrs. Eleanor Fawcett, 45, of 337 West Hanover Street, has been charged with involuntary manslaughter in the auto death last week of former Bucks County Judge John W. Eckelberry.

Mrs. Fawcett injured seriously in the crash which took Judge Eckelberry's life, was released in $2,000 bail for a coroner's inquest at a hearing before Justice of the Peace Frederick Holly today in Middletown Township.

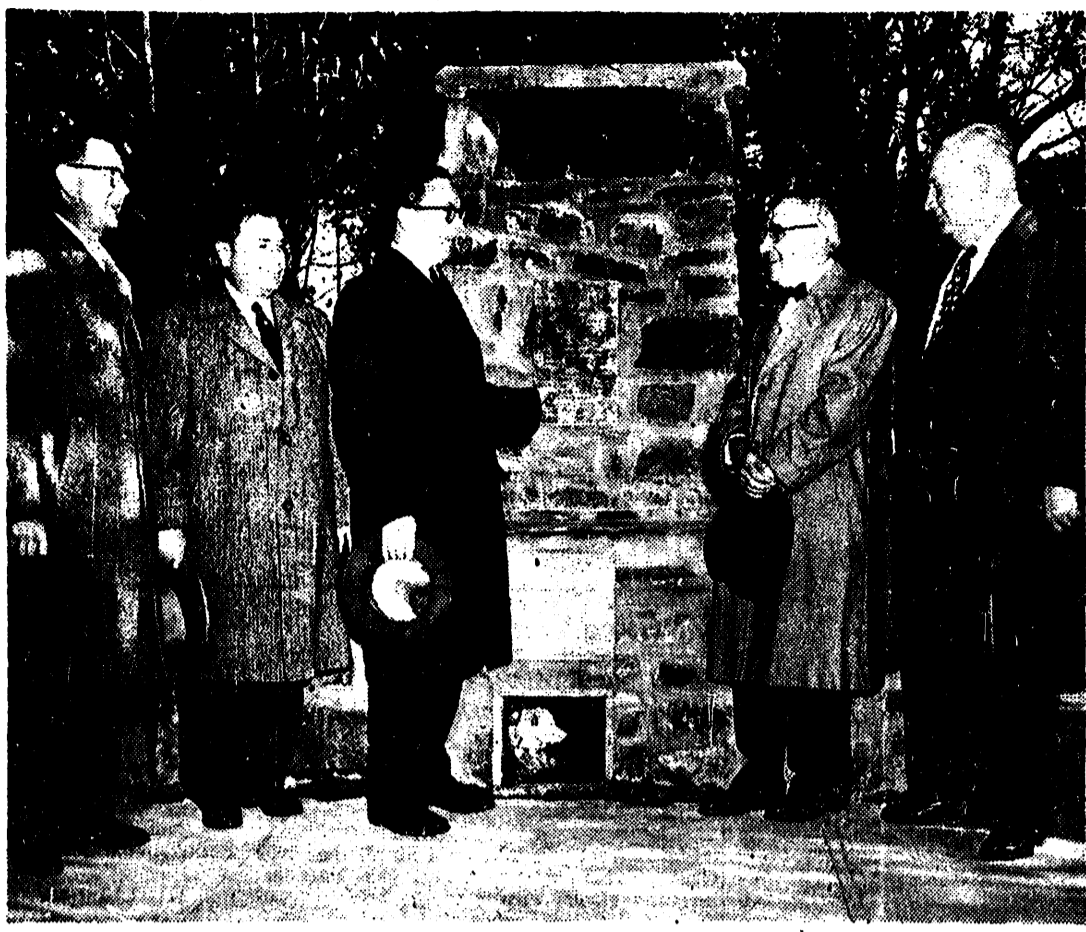

She was released from Lower Bucks County Hospital this morning after being confined since last Tuesday. A car she was driving collided with one driven by Judge Eckelberry.

Middletown Township police said Mrs. Fawcett's car went through a stop sign at Woodbourne and Trenton Roads, near Levittown and Fairless Hills.

Judge Eckelberry, 71 and a Fairless Hills resident, died early Thursday of injuries suffered in the crash. He served on the Bucks County bench from December 1954 until November 1955.

Cheerful Workers
... are the rule in offices equipped with Clary Adding Machine that add, subtract, multiply and divide. See them here.
PRIOR Typewriter Co.

New County Park Is Dedicated

This was the scene as "Cedarbliss," a six and one-half acre tract of natural beauty donated by Dr. and Mrs. Emil Frankel to the people of Mercer County for recreation, was dedicated. Freeholder Richard J. Coffee (center) reads the wording on the memorial plaque on the newly-built outdoor fireplace after its unveiling by Dr. Frankel (second from right). Others in the photo from left to right are Mayor Kenneth L. Williamson of Hopewell Township, Freeholder Joseph R. Guerio and Freeholder Harry E. Lieberman. "Cedarbliss" is located in Hopewell Township north of the Washington Crossing State Park. The tract is ideally situated for small camping groups on one-day outings or overnight excursions. To insure proper supervision and use by organized groups, the selection of agencies using the park will be made by the Council of Social Agencies, Freeholder Coffee has announced. Since the plot was given to the county by Dr. and Mrs. Frankel, considerable work has been done in rehabilitating the cabin and clearing trails.

From Princeton And Columbia

Two Chinese Scientists Seen Nobel Physics Prize Winners

STOCKHOLM (AP)—Stockholm newspapers today reported two young Chinese physicists working in the United States will receive the Nobel Prize in Physics.

They are Prof. Tsung Dao Lee, 30, of Columbia University, and Prof. Chen Ning Yang, 34, of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton, N. J. Last January they announced discoveries that destroyed the "principle of parity," for 30 years a basic law of all physical theory.

The two newspapers, Aftonbladet and Expressen, also said Sir Alexander Todd, 50, would receive the Nobel Prize in Chemistry. Todd is a Cambridge University professor and a world authority on nucleotides, minute chemical building stones of living matter. The Swedish Academy of Science will meet tomorrow afternoon to make final selection of the 1957 winners.

Each prize is worth about $42,000 this year. Tomorrow's selection awards.

The "principle of parity" held that submicroscopic particles always behaved symmetrically, having no distinctively different right or left sides, no tops or bottoms.

In experiments conducted at Columbia University on the basis of reasoning by Lee and Yang, the most elementary particles now known were proven to have an intrinsic "right-handedness" or "left-handedness" in their direction of spin. Physics authorities at Columbia likened the discoveries in future importance to the earlier pronouncements of Albert Einstein.

N. Y. Herald Tribune Declares For Forbes

NEW YORK — AP — The New York Herald Tribune has become the ninth daily newspaper to endorse Senator Malcolm S. Forbes for governor of New Jersey saying that his defeat would spell trouble for Republican election hopes in 1958 and 1960.

"The national administration is making New Jersey the test of whether the Republican party still enjoys the trust and confidence of the nation," the paper said in an editorial for today's editions.

"If New Jersey is lost the assumption will be widely made that the Democrats are also certain to win the Congress in 1958 and the Presidential election in 1960."

The newspaper said that Forbes and his Democratic opponent, Governor Robert B. Meyner, were "fairly evenly balanced" in honesty, integrity and concern for the state's welfare.

But the editorial added that "on both performance and promise, (Forbes) has superior quality." It praised him for his stand on reduction of state expenses.

Bradley Renamed To Realty Board

Governor Meyner has renamed Vincent P. Bradley of Trenton to the New Jersey Real Estate Commission. The appointment, which does not require Senate confirmation, was filed with the Secretary of State. The salary is $4,000 a year.

Meyner Will Tour Mercer Tomorrow

Governor Meyner will campaign tomorrow in Mercer County in his last week drive aimed at Democratic strongholds.

In the only full day this Fall devoted to Mercer by either candidate, Meyner will stress visits to industrial plants before speaking at the annual Mercer Democratic rally at Hotel Hildebrecht at 8:30 p. m.

Starting at noon, the Governor will visit several clothing factories at North Olden and Breunig Avenues and go on later to Hamilton Rubber Company and De Laval Steam Turbine Company. Sandwiched between will be a luncheon speech before the Trenton Rotary Club.

Following the evening rally, Meyner will appear at the Trenton Polish-American Democratic Club and at a meeting of the Polish Falcons. His only appearances outside Trenton will be an afternoon women's reception at the home of Conservative Commissioner Joseph E. McLean on the Lawrenceville-Princeton Road and a visit to the Ewing Shopping Center before the Hildebrecht rally.

Forbes

(Continued from Page One)

ney Rock proposal upon the people of this state, despite our warnings that this project might be beaten by the voters.

A referendum on a bond issue to build a reservoir at Chimney Rock in Somerset County was soundly defeated in the 1955 general election. Forbes, who supported the proposal, won a bitter fight for reelection to the State Senate that year. He has blamed Meyner for the proposal's failure, saying the Governor refused to take a stand on it.

Meyner was scheduled to make 11 stops in normally Democratic Middlesex County during the day as he stepped up his pace in the final week of the campaign. He was due to appear at East Brunswick, South Amboy, East Brunswick, Middlesex Borough, Pleasant Township, Metuchen, Perth Amboy, and Edison.

The Governor and his wife, Mrs. Helen Meyner, were heartened by one of the warmer receptions of the campaign as they toured Camden county yesterday, making 17 appearances.

The turnout was good at most stops and the Camden County Democratic organization saw to it that music and flowers were not lacking. Democratic state chairman George E. Brunner, mayor of Camden, accompanied the Governor.

In an apparent effort to combat what Brunner described as "some voter apathy," Meyner and the state chairman urged their audiences to not only vote the straight Democratic ticket themselves, but persuade others to do so.

Brunner and other Democratic officials predicted Meyner would carry Camden by more than the 26,000 plurality he received in 1953. They said the Assembly ticket would trail him by about 10,000 votes and other Democratic county candidates would win by smaller margins.

Meyner received his most frequent applause of the day at two stops—when he told a group of Rutgers University students he favored the pay as you go plan to finance the university's construction needs and when he told a meeting in the Negro community of Lawnside there was no discrimination in state government.

The Governor told students at Rutgers' Camden branch, however, that he thinks the university's need for new facilities is so great he will support a bond issue if necessary.

Forbes has advocated a bond issue for Rutgers.

Asked about statements by Forbes that 38 to 40 million dollars could be devoted to education and other purposes by trimming excess fat from the state budget, Meyner drew a laugh by saying, "My opponent has spent that 38 or 40 million dollars many times over."

The students also applauded when Meyner told them, "My only ambition is to be the first two-term Governor under the 1947 state constitution." The remark came in response to a question about his presidential aspirations in 1960.

There was prolonged applause when Meyner told the Negro audience at Lawnside that his administration has drawn up plans for enforcing a new state law that bars discrimination in homes financed through the Veterans Administration or the Federal Housing Administration.

1958 CADILLAC

We suggest that you place your order today to insure early delivery.

JOHNSTON CADILLAC
INCORPORATED
Cadillac Factory Distributor
TRENTON 8, NEW JERSEY

Housing Authority Roundup

Will Get Bids To Raze Rest Of Coalport

The Trenton Housing Authority acted yesterday to receive bids on demolition of the remainder of the Coalport area late next month.

And it appears the authority will adopt a "hands off" policy toward liquor establishments in Coalport by refraining from urging the City Commission to change the ordinance to make it easier for the licensees to move.

THA authorized Redevelopment Director Joseph Garrigan to prepare specifications for leveling the rest of Coalport. Garrigan said he hopes to receive bids the week of November 25.

Previously it had been planned to divide the demolition work into three parts. The contract for the first section, north of Jefferson Street, was awarded weeks ago and 51 of 85 buildings there already have been demolished. The authority decided yesterday to award only one more contract—for about 195 buildings, including those on North Clinton Avenue and Perry Street.

Garrigan and redevelopment consultant Murray Bisgaler said this should prove cheaper and more practical in the long run instead of awarding the contract for the two major streets separately. Garrigan announced that 94 buildings in Area No. 2 are vacant and ready to be destroyed. THA already holds title to 54 others which are still occupied.

As it did in Area No. 1, THA will "release" buildings for demolition from time to time under the new contract as title is acquired and they become vacant. Saved until last will be the city crematory on Southard Street and the authority's relocation office at 826 Perry Street.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crematory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

Will Get Bids To Raze Rest Of Coalport

The Trenton Housing Authority acted yesterday to receive bids on demolition of the remainder of the Coalport area late next month.

And it appears the authority will adopt a "hands off" policy toward liquor establishments in Coalport by refraining from urging the City Commission to change the ordinance to make it easier for the licensees to move.

THA authorized Redevelopment Director Joseph Garrigan to prepare specifications for leveling the rest of Coalport. Garrigan said he hopes to receive bids the week of November 25.

Previously it had been planned to divide the demolition work into three parts. The contract for the first section, north of Jefferson Street, was awarded weeks ago and 51 of 85 buildings there already have been demolished. The authority decided yesterday to award only one more contract—for about 195 buildings, including those on North Clinton Avenue and Perry Street.

Garrigan and redevelopment consultant Murray Bisgaler said this should prove cheaper and more practical in the long run instead of awarding the contract for the two major streets separately. Garrigan announced that 94 buildings in Area No. 2 are vacant and ready to be destroyed. THA already holds title to 54 others which are still occupied.

As it did in Area No. 1, THA will "release" buildings for demolition from time to time under the new contract as title is acquired and they become vacant. Saved until last will be the city crematory on Southard Street and the authority's relocation office at 826 Perry Street.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

Discuss Coalport Saloon Question

The question of the liquor licenses was brought up by Mayor Connolly, who attended the Stacey-Trent meeting to present service awards to three veteran THA members.

He wanted to know whether the authority would press the City Commission to amend the liquor ordinance, which prohibits a new licensed establishment to open up within 500 feet of other licensed premises and also requires City Commission approval to transfer a license more than 250 feet.

From the remarks of THA members (and lack of comment by some) the Mayor concluded that the authority will not press for any such changes. There were six licensed establishments in Coalport and one already has been demolished. Owners of the other five have thus far refused to settle with the authority.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Some observers feel that it will be next to impossible to reach a selling price agreement with these owners and that in all cases THA will have to move to condemn them. And condemnation commissioners no doubt would take into consideration, when setting a price, that the bar owners would lose their livelihood. So THA probably will be forced to pay more for the properties.

With THA, using Federal funds, spending more, the city would be forced to contribute more toward Coalport under the "two for one" cooperation agreement.

Garrigan estimated it might take a year to finish demolition of Coalport. But of course it will be impossible to destroy the crema-

tory until the city builds a new one or finds another way to dispose of its garbage.

Fredk. W. DONNELLY & SON
DOWNTOWN & SUBURBAN Celebrates
LAKELAND WEEK
October 26 - November 2

... with the finest selection of men's and boys' sportswear.

Shown here is the "Pine Tree Town." Trimly tailored with ivy pockets and leather buttons. Soft, luxurious Skinner's satin quilted lining. Be a suburban-smart on brisk winter days with this new, pin-stripe, wool town-coat.

pintree town
Sizes 38-46 Gray & Tan
29.95
men's clothing dept.

downtown 35 East State Street (South Side - Near Broad) suburban 956 Parkway Avenue (Ewing Shopping Center)

1958 CADILLAC
We suggest that you place your order today to insure early delivery.

JOHNSTON CADILLAC
INCORPORATED
Cadillac Factory Distributor
TRENTON 8, NEW JERSEY

The Queen's Ready

Maxine Strehlow of 811 Stuyvesant Avenue, queen of Trenton's Halloween parade, is shown receiving her crown from Judy Perry, last year's queen, in preparation for tonight's parade. Looking on is Vincent Girard, city recreation supervisor.

Jenner Hits Integrationist

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP)—The Senate Internal Security subcommittee hearings ended in an uproar here yesterday with Sen. William Jenner (R-Ind.) denouncing Mrs. Grace Lorch as a "Communist organizer" and threatening to cite her for contempt of Congress.

An overflow crowd broke into loud applause and rebel yells as Jenner pounded a clenched fist on the table and told the Little Rock, Ark., housewife and integrationist leader that she should be "cited for contempt."

The contempt threat came after Mrs. Lorch ignored the committee's questions yesterday and tried to read a prepared statement attacking the subcommittee and its chairman, Sen. James O. Eastland (D-Miss.).

Shortly afterwards, Eastland and Jenner made the surprise announcement that the hearings here had ended. They were to run through today.

Jenner said it was decided to cut the hearings short because of "uncooperative witnesses" who invoked the Fifth Amendment and the fact that many witnesses were excused from appearing here.

Panel Art O-V-E-R-S-I-Z-E-D Never-Fade print

You can get them at the three Photo Art stores and at hundreds of drug stores agencies displaying the Never-Fade sign in Trenton and surrounding towns.

Kodak Color Processing Enlargements Picture Framing

Photo Art Co.
33 W. State
129 N. Water
We have a lot of new prints

Bogwood

reduced 25%
Wonderful opportunity for home-owners. Plant now, while dormant.
Pink Dogwood 2 1/2 ft. .... now 4.87
White Dogwood 3-3 1/2 ft. .... now 4.87

HOWE Nurseries
PLANT MARKETS

Suitcase Arsenal Found At School

NEW YORK (AP)—A suitcase arsenal was found by a janitor today in the play yard of Public School 168.

The suitcase, stashed beneath a grating in the yard, contained a sawed-off .22 caliber rifle with six cartridges in its clip and what appeared to be a home-made hand grenade designed to throw out a shrapnel-like spray of bullets when exploded.

Police believed the suitcase was the property of juvenile gang members in the area. Pupils only as far as grade 6B are enrolled in the school.

Police were hunting for members of juvenile gangs in the neighborhood.