

Shipping Interests Pin Hopes on International Economic Parley

World Tariffs Seen As Great Trade Barrier

Despite Curtailed Expenses, Many Lines Operating at Loss

LONDON, Oct. 29 (U.P.)—An ardent hope that the "germs" of tariffs, restrictions, war debts and exchange restrictions would be annihilated at the forthcoming World Economic Conference, was expressed recently by the Rt. Hon. Lord Esmond, chairman of the shipping firm, Furness, Withy & Company.

Lord Esmond was speaking as guest of honor at a luncheon of the American Chamber of Commerce here. Reference to the above-mentioned "germs" was made in connection with his subject, "Shipping."

Although, as he said, he was "not a candidate for the presidency of the United States," he hesitated to speak of subjects such as war debts and reparations. He observed, however, that "all right-thinking people in this country realize that the payment of certain debts was agreed upon, and could only be altered by specific arrangement." This payment, he felt, would be complicated by the refusal of creditor nations to accept payment in goods and services.

Factors such as tariffs and exchange restrictions, Lord Esmond noted, were more directly connected with the plight of shipping nations. They had suffered heavily from general depression. The shipping companies, for their part, had done everything possible to facilitate a full interchange of goods among nations. They had, for example, cut expenses to the bone, and laid up as much as 50 per cent. of their vessels in some cases, and were very often running at a loss simply to maintain good will and stimulate trade as much as possible.

Further complications were presented, Lord Esmond declared, by the tremendous increase in the cost of ships available than was needed. The registered gross tonnage before the war, he pointed out, was 44,000,000 tons today it is no less than 70,000,000 tons. Ships, today, moreover, were speedier, port facilities better, and everything contributed to a

BORDENTOWN BOOK ADDED TO LIBRARY

The Free Public Library has added to its shelves the new history of Bordentown which has just appeared from the press of the Bordentown Register. The book was written by James D. Magee and illustrated by Mrs. Magee.

In his preface the author acknowledges his indebtedness to Henry J. Fodmers, Trenton historian, "for much valuable assistance." The book gives a succinct account of the many colorful and outstanding events in Bordentown's history and besides being a valuable contribution to the history of this part of New Jersey, will be of interest to all who have a new interest in Bordentown's history as a result of the recent celebration of the town's 250th anniversary.

The TRENTON SCOUT TRAIL

By George S. Davey Scout Executive of Trenton-Mercer Council

Those are two words that we seldom hear in scouting, but here they are for every scout, do not engage in any political or political propaganda.

There are two sides to every question, even in politics. No scout may participate as a scout in any political party. This includes drum corps members, buglers, poster and hand-bill passers, and even scout speakers.

But it is the duty of every good Scoutmaster to see that his scouting should help to give this vote out, but not influence it.

Men Will Train

Scouting will again have training troops through the coming winter. The standard year training program will be used as usual. Several Trentonians are in line for their diploma keys.

Courses for which registrants will be accepted follow: Sea Scout men, December 1, 6 and 15, discussion group; cub officers, November 28, December 5, 12, January 9, 16 and 23; Scouts Club (advanced) November 23, December 21, February 1, March 23 and April 26; scouters men (preliminary), January 25, February 1, 8, 15, March 1 and 8; Camporal June 11. The men camp work and first aid specialty course dates will be announced later.

The Green Bar course, for senior patrol leaders and assistants, will be held December 7, January 14, April 15 and June 11. All patrol leaders should plan to take in each of these nights.

Scouts Open Gates

Troop 17, with new colors, acted as guard of honor yesterday at the opening of the new memorial gates erected by the Society of Colonial Dames in Washington Crossing Park. Scoutmaster August Ciel was in charge of troops.

Scouts on duty when the delegates of the Deeper Waterways Association arrived yesterday at the Winter Camp were Troops 4, 10 and 102. The ship was met by sideboys, and the usual courtesy was paid the visiting officials as they were welcomed by Trentonians.

Help Needed

Again scouts will be called to the front line trenches for the war against need. In mid-November, American Legion members will join with 1,000 scouts in collecting clothing that will be sorted and distributed by the city relief department.

Cards will be issued, troops, and armed with these, the scouts will collect clothing. This year may provide slender pickings, for we have already asked and received 12 tons from our city. The success depends upon reaching the homes that have never been touched. There will be many scouts able to stop for a minute on Thanksgiving morning to be thanked for the fact that we have helped keep baby warm during the winter ahead. Be prepared.

At a meeting of the order last Thursday night at the Westminster Church final plans for the Winter Camp were presented and approved. Several scouters were elected members, and the change of the second degree to the Spring initiation session was approved.

The order will sponsor the final Camporal to be held outdoors in the late Spring, when every troop will send a representative one crack patrol. These patrols will have opportunity of practice throughout the winter for the camping tests, and each will go through all the points of an overnight camp in the field. The grades will be on hike approach, equipment, organization, selection of site, setup of camp, general work of all members, time and thoroughness, meal menus and preparation, camp fire, signaling and first aid.

Order members will be in touch with troops that need help in this project, and districts will have opportunities for competition through the winter.

New Members

The latest additions to the regular roll are the registration papers of Troop 21 and the new troop of the Highstown Legion Post. The Highstown troop committee comprises J. Ernest Davison, Harry C. Locke, Elmer Sheahan, John Cuttinele and Joseph E. Scoutmaster C. Sanger Robinson and Assistant Scoutmaster Prescott Barrett. Scout members are Max Bard, Eugene Carlson, Robert Cuttinele, Joseph E. Blinn, Wilbur Dunphy, Anthony Euphemis, Stanley Hutchinson, Henry Koch, Walter Koch, William Wiley, Norman Wilson and Austin Southard.

The Council welcomes this newest troop.

Cubs Move

Pack 13 with scout leaders from troop 13, under Will Stover, met yesterday for their Fall hike to Lawrenceville.

Arriving Saturday morning at the home of Senator A. C. Beever, the cubs cooked their dinners and worked out on a treasure hunt during the afternoon.

Den Leaders Linton Bressler, Joe Moore, Ken Richards, Robey Brian, Charley Corbisley and Jack Williamson were referee of the fast action during the day. The return was made by truck, and the pack is already planning their next activity.

Troop News

Troop 43 turned out last Tuesday to look for a man missing in the Baker Basin woods. Members were scattered through the territory with other searchers and during the hunt Scoutmasters Woodam and Rowland with John Morris and Andy Crichton searched from Toad Hollow.

K. of C. members met last Wednesday night for preliminary organization of a sea scout crew, which will comprise old scouts of the K. of C. troops. Field Commissioner Frank

Claims Hitler's Power on Wane

President of Missouri University Sees Him As Demagogue

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 29 (U.P.)—Adolf Hitler, German Nazi leader, has reached the peak of his power, Walter Williams, president of the University of Missouri and perhaps the world's best-known living journalist, believes.

Williams, founder of the world's first school of journalism at the University of Missouri, and for 20 years its head, recently returned from an extensive tour of Germany, where he made a close study of conditions.

"The tendency," Williams said, "is toward a stronger centralized government, and the change in that direction, I believe, will come by constitutional and parliamentary methods, not by bayonets."

"Hitler has reached the peak of his power," he continued. "In oratorical persuasiveness, he is another William Jennings Bryan. Hearing him speak, and you can see the crowd swayed by his eloquence, even if, in my case, you do not understand all that is said."

"Hitler has good organizers, and he has great facility at making promises. He even promises every young woman a husband, and joins to this the advice that the women keep out of politics and rear children, and this appeal seems to win votes for him."

"He tells the Germans that he will win for Germany her place in the sun, and that Germany must no longer be a second rate country, but must have equality with all others. He has gained a tremendous following through promises, but when he fails to make good on those promises he will start on a decline of his power. That time soon must come," Williams believes.

Lytton Report Hit By China's Envoy

Ambassador to Washington Regrets Emphasis Placed on Disorder

GENEVA, Oct. 29 (U.P.)—Dr. W. W. Yen, head of the Chinese delegation at Geneva and ambassador to Washington, in a statement revealing his views of the Lytton Report, expressed disappointment that treaty rights under the Covenant of Paris Pact, and Nine-Power Treaty, have not produced a report more favorable to China.

Dr. Yen said: "One cannot but regret that the justice of the case, treaty rights, should have been relegated to an inferior position in favor of what are described as the 'realities' of the situation."

The Chinese diplomat also objected to the Lytton Commission's emphasis of the disorder resulting from the transformation of China into a modern State. Dr. Yen declared: "One would wish that the Commission of Enquiry had traced the development of the Japanese expansionist policy with an effort comparable to what it has spent upon the growth of Chinese nationalism and described the present internal crisis of Japan, especially its political-military aspects, no less than it has done with regard to disturbed conditions in China."

DR. TOBIAS TO BE BANQUET SPEAKER

Dr. Channing H. Tobias, senior secretary of the Y. M. C. A. National Council Colored Work Department, will be the speaker at the second annual "Good Fellowship Dinner," to be held Friday evening in the Masonic Temple on Pennington Avenue, under the auspices of the Men's Community Club of the Y. M. C. A. Colored Community Work.

It is expected that approximately 200 will be in attendance at the dinner.

Candidate for Pennsylvania Legislature Seeking Defeat

Nominated by Republicans and Democrats, Good-nough Trying to Escape Election So He Can Take Appointive Job

EMPORIUM, Pa., Oct. 29.—For two decades C. Jay Goodnough, of Cameron County, has been elected and reelected to the Pennsylvania State House of Representatives. Today he is making political history by staging an active campaign for his own defeat at the polls in November.

Not content with having nominated him for the post on the Republican ticket, politicians of opposing factions, the Democrats and Progressives, also placed his name on

Nor can he be appointed while in office.

The appointment of Goodnough to the service commission does not take effect until December 1, at the close of his present term in the House. But, if he is reelected again, he cannot accept the commission post.

Therefore, with only a matter of days before the election polls are thrown open in the county of Cameron, Goodnough is carrying on a vigorous sticker campaign for his own defeat. As there is a difference of several thousand dollars in the salaries of the two offices and a great amount of political prestige attached to the public service commission post, Goodnough is making serious efforts to defeat himself.

The legality of the Goodnough appointment is questioned by several authorities on the Pennsylvania constitution. If it is found to be illegal, observers say, it is virtually a certainty that Goodnough will be re-appointed December 1, should he be defeated at the polls.
