

Evening Times FOUNDED 1882

Published Daily, except Sunday by the TRENTON TIMES 8-10 South Stockton St. Trenton, N. J.

TELEPHONES--2200. Either phone. Private branch-exchanges through which the news, business and all departments can be reached.

The circulation of the Trenton Evening Times for the past twelve months was upwards of 20,000 copies daily.

MONDAY, MAY 8, 1911.

RIVERSIDE PARK.

The Times agrees with its esteemed Sunday contemporary, that the Park Commissioners, before opening up the upper section of the Riverside park to carriages and automobiles, should test public opinion.

At its last session, the Legislature made an appropriation for a survey for a Delaware Valley boulevard, to extend from Trenton to the New York State line.

Adoption of the reservation policy need not interfere with the building of the Riverside Drive bridge. It will be several years before the city can afford to spend the large sum of money that will be required to develop the proposed boulevard.

Few love to hear the sna they love to act--Shakespeare.

SCHOOL FARE AND FRANCHISES.

Whether the Public Service Railway Company shall continue to sell school tickets at a reduced rate, is to be decided by the Supreme Court.

When the situation in Plainfield is presented to the court there may be a change of view. There are a number of conditions under which the franchise to use the public streets was granted.

My grand point of preaching is to break the hard heart, and to heal the weak one.--John Newton.

Announcement that the receivers of the defunct State Building and Loan Association of Camden have begun proceedings in the Court of Chancery to recover upwards of $100,000 from the officers and directors who, by their mismanagement, neglect or criminality, were responsible for the wrecking of the association.

Criticism of Governor Wilson for taking a three weeks' vacation might have greater force if it were not for the knowledge that he has since his inauguration been devoting five long days a week to the State's business.

The secret of success in life, is for a man to be able to take the opportunity when it comes.--Disraeli.

SETTING A GOOD EXAMPLE.

All of our Governors have declared that the making of appointments gave them more trouble, and created more dissatisfaction, than any other one duty of the executive office.

It probably will not be denied that when the factory inspection law was originally passed, there was no intention that it was to be strictly enforced.

There is no branch of the State government in which there are greater possibilities for harm; and it is important that only men and women of the highest efficiency, good judgment and known probity should be employed therein.

Critics of the Governor who have been charging him with the use of the power of appointment to further his personal ambitions, will find in his action in handing over to the Civil Service Commission and the head of the Labor Department the appointment of a score of inspectors, nothing to justify their charges.

To manage men, one ought to have a sharp mind in a velvet sheath.--George Elliot.

Slight compensation for neglect visited upon the Volunteer Fireman and his pedestal may be found in the fact that the longer it is continued the more will be the saving in water that might otherwise run to waste.

Among the game bills passed by the last Legislature was one making a contract open season throughout the State, beginning with November 1st and closing on December 15th.

By the death of John T. Bird, Trenton loses one of its most distinguished citizens, and the State an able jurist and one of its ablest lawyers.

Willis--Why don't you go to church? Willis--Too far. Why don't you go? Willis--We live next door to one and I hate to go all dressed up just to go that little way.--Puck.

"Alas!" quoth he, "There was a time when I was on the job. My book horn, at night and morn, Spread fear among the mob."

A "member of the State Board" excuses the failure of the State Board of Education to hold its meetings in Trenton "because no room had been furnished for it at the State House."

The Legislature made provision for the printing of 10,000 copies of the new commission government law in pamphlet form, for public use; but the greater part of the edition is to be sent to the Senators and Assemblymen for distribution.

"I want two eggs," said the American; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"More expensive, sir, and another fainter," "Very well, sir."

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've entirely forgotten my name and where I live, but by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around much money as this!"--Success Magazine.

"I'm mighty glad to see this movement for rectitude," said the plain citizen. "It argues for an era of better understanding and kindliness."

"You believe it will develop international friendliness?" "I wasn't thinkin' about foreign countries. But if Canada and the United States can come to a social agreement, maybe we can hope that Chicago and New York will yet have respect for each other."--Washington Star.

But the Sons of the American Revolution may do even better, if they desire to erect a conspicuous memorial to Washington and his men. A light on bridge connects the two towns mentioned. It is not at all pretty and tolls are collected from the public.

A RHYME OF THE CITIES. Said little Johnnie to the owl: "I've heard you're wondrous wise, and so I'd like to question you. Now, please, don't tell me lies."

"The first thing, then, I'd have you tell My empty mind to fill. Pray, was it that explosive beef That made Chicago ill?"

"I've heard it said, yet do not know-- In fact, it may be both-- Then, tell me, is it lots of dirt That makes Seattle Wash?"

"When certain things do not go straight To right them we must try. So maybe you can say what 'tis Sets Providence R. I."

"Another thing I wish I could Inform my waiting class Is just how many priests it takes To say the Boston Mass."

"This is the time of running debts, As you may surely know. This secret, then, impart to me: How much does Cleveland owe?"

"In ages, too, you must be learned, More so than many men. So tell me in a whisper, please, When was Miss Nashville Tenn?"

"It takes great heat sold to melt, And iron takes much more. Then is it true that way out west The rain melts Portland Ore?"

"Some voices are so strong and full And some so still and small That I have wondered oftentimes How loud could Denver Col."

"He-hobbled and he-hereared girls, An' heavy footed men. With thrills of fear, turned round to hear My horn's hoarse honking then."

"But now my day has passed away, My glory all forgot. They look at me in mockery, My horn, disturbs them not."

"With fawling eye, they search the sky, Where aviators course. But pass us by, my car and I, As if we were a horse!"--Philadelphia Times.

He was a sad-faced American tourist who sat himself in a London restaurant he was immediately attended by an obsequious waiter.

"I want two eggs," said the American; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"More expensive, sir, and another fainter," "Very well, sir."

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've entirely forgotten my name and where I live, but by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around much money as this!"--Success Magazine.

"I'm mighty glad to see this movement for rectitude," said the plain citizen. "It argues for an era of better understanding and kindliness."

"You believe it will develop international friendliness?" "I wasn't thinkin' about foreign countries. But if Canada and the United States can come to a social agreement, maybe we can hope that Chicago and New York will yet have respect for each other."--Washington Star.

But the Sons of the American Revolution may do even better, if they desire to erect a conspicuous memorial to Washington and his men. A light on bridge connects the two towns mentioned. It is not at all pretty and tolls are collected from the public.

A RHYME OF THE CITIES. Said little Johnnie to the owl: "I've heard you're wondrous wise, and so I'd like to question you. Now, please, don't tell me lies."

"The first thing, then, I'd have you tell My empty mind to fill. Pray, was it that explosive beef That made Chicago ill?"

"I've heard it said, yet do not know-- In fact, it may be both-- Then, tell me, is it lots of dirt That makes Seattle Wash?"

"When certain things do not go straight To right them we must try. So maybe you can say what 'tis Sets Providence R. I."

"Another thing I wish I could Inform my waiting class Is just how many priests it takes To say the Boston Mass."

"This is the time of running debts, As you may surely know. This secret, then, impart to me: How much does Cleveland owe?"

"In ages, too, you must be learned, More so than many men. So tell me in a whisper, please, When was Miss Nashville Tenn?"

"It takes great heat sold to melt, And iron takes much more. Then is it true that way out west The rain melts Portland Ore?"

"Some voices are so strong and full And some so still and small That I have wondered oftentimes How loud could Denver Col."

"Willis--Why don't you go to church? Willis--Too far. Why don't you go? Willis--We live next door to one and I hate to go all dressed up just to go that little way.--Puck.

"Did you ever try to call a suburban home for what you paid for it?" they asked. Herewith he saw a way to break the spell.--Lucas.

Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, was the principal guest at a dinner of the London Authors' Club recently, which was followed by a discussion on "Humor." Mr. Seaman began with a story deprecating the spilling of a good dinner by any discussion at all.

"What you see in that creature to admire I can't see," said Mrs. Dubb-leigh. "Why she's all made up. Her hair, her figure, her complexion--every bit of her is artificial."

"I want two eggs," said the American; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"More expensive, sir, and another fainter," "Very well, sir."

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've entirely forgotten my name and where I live, but by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around much money as this!"--Success Magazine.

"I'm mighty glad to see this movement for rectitude," said the plain citizen. "It argues for an era of better understanding and kindliness."

"You believe it will develop international friendliness?" "I wasn't thinkin' about foreign countries. But if Canada and the United States can come to a social agreement, maybe we can hope that Chicago and New York will yet have respect for each other."--Washington Star.

But the Sons of the American Revolution may do even better, if they desire to erect a conspicuous memorial to Washington and his men. A light on bridge connects the two towns mentioned. It is not at all pretty and tolls are collected from the public.

A RHYME OF THE CITIES. Said little Johnnie to the owl: "I've heard you're wondrous wise, and so I'd like to question you. Now, please, don't tell me lies."

"The first thing, then, I'd have you tell My empty mind to fill. Pray, was it that explosive beef That made Chicago ill?"

"I've heard it said, yet do not know-- In fact, it may be both-- Then, tell me, is it lots of dirt That makes Seattle Wash?"

"When certain things do not go straight To right them we must try. So maybe you can say what 'tis Sets Providence R. I."

"Another thing I wish I could Inform my waiting class Is just how many priests it takes To say the Boston Mass."

"This is the time of running debts, As you may surely know. This secret, then, impart to me: How much does Cleveland owe?"

"In ages, too, you must be learned, More so than many men. So tell me in a whisper, please, When was Miss Nashville Tenn?"

"It takes great heat sold to melt, And iron takes much more. Then is it true that way out west The rain melts Portland Ore?"

"Some voices are so strong and full And some so still and small That I have wondered oftentimes How loud could Denver Col."

"Willis--Why don't you go to church? Willis--Too far. Why don't you go? Willis--We live next door to one and I hate to go all dressed up just to go that little way.--Puck.

"Did you ever try to call a suburban home for what you paid for it?" they asked. Herewith he saw a way to break the spell.--Lucas.

Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, was the principal guest at a dinner of the London Authors' Club recently, which was followed by a discussion on "Humor." Mr. Seaman began with a story deprecating the spilling of a good dinner by any discussion at all.

"What you see in that creature to admire I can't see," said Mrs. Dubb-leigh. "Why she's all made up. Her hair, her figure, her complexion--every bit of her is artificial."

"I want two eggs," said the American; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"More expensive, sir, and another fainter," "Very well, sir."

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've entirely forgotten my name and where I live, but by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around much money as this!"--Success Magazine.

"I'm mighty glad to see this movement for rectitude," said the plain citizen. "It argues for an era of better understanding and kindliness."

"You believe it will develop international friendliness?" "I wasn't thinkin' about foreign countries. But if Canada and the United States can come to a social agreement, maybe we can hope that Chicago and New York will yet have respect for each other."--Washington Star.

But the Sons of the American Revolution may do even better, if they desire to erect a conspicuous memorial to Washington and his men. A light on bridge connects the two towns mentioned. It is not at all pretty and tolls are collected from the public.

A RHYME OF THE CITIES. Said little Johnnie to the owl: "I've heard you're wondrous wise, and so I'd like to question you. Now, please, don't tell me lies."

"The first thing, then, I'd have you tell My empty mind to fill. Pray, was it that explosive beef That made Chicago ill?"

"I've heard it said, yet do not know-- In fact, it may be both-- Then, tell me, is it lots of dirt That makes Seattle Wash?"

"When certain things do not go straight To right them we must try. So maybe you can say what 'tis Sets Providence R. I."

"Another thing I wish I could Inform my waiting class Is just how many priests it takes To say the Boston Mass."

"This is the time of running debts, As you may surely know. This secret, then, impart to me: How much does Cleveland owe?"

"In ages, too, you must be learned, More so than many men. So tell me in a whisper, please, When was Miss Nashville Tenn?"

"It takes great heat sold to melt, And iron takes much more. Then is it true that way out west The rain melts Portland Ore?"

"Some voices are so strong and full And some so still and small That I have wondered oftentimes How loud could Denver Col."

"Willis--Why don't you go to church? Willis--Too far. Why don't you go? Willis--We live next door to one and I hate to go all dressed up just to go that little way.--Puck.

"Did you ever try to call a suburban home for what you paid for it?" they asked. Herewith he saw a way to break the spell.--Lucas.

Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, was the principal guest at a dinner of the London Authors' Club recently, which was followed by a discussion on "Humor." Mr. Seaman began with a story deprecating the spilling of a good dinner by any discussion at all.

"What you see in that creature to admire I can't see," said Mrs. Dubb-leigh. "Why she's all made up. Her hair, her figure, her complexion--every bit of her is artificial."

"I want two eggs," said the American; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"More expensive, sir, and another fainter," "Very well, sir."

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've entirely forgotten my name and where I live, but by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around much money as this!"--Success Magazine.

"I'm mighty glad to see this movement for rectitude," said the plain citizen. "It argues for an era of better understanding and kindliness."

"You believe it will develop international friendliness?" "I wasn't thinkin' about foreign countries. But if Canada and the United States can come to a social agreement, maybe we can hope that Chicago and New York will yet have respect for each other."--Washington Star.

But the Sons of the American Revolution may do even better, if they desire to erect a conspicuous memorial to Washington and his men. A light on bridge connects the two towns mentioned. It is not at all pretty and tolls are collected from the public.

A RHYME OF THE CITIES. Said little Johnnie to the owl: "I've heard you're wondrous wise, and so I'd like to question you. Now, please, don't tell me lies."

"The first thing, then, I'd have you tell My empty mind to fill. Pray, was it that explosive beef That made Chicago ill?"

"I've heard it said, yet do not know-- In fact, it may be both-- Then, tell me, is it lots of dirt That makes Seattle Wash?"

"When certain things do not go straight To right them we must try. So maybe you can say what 'tis Sets Providence R. I."

"Another thing I wish I could Inform my waiting class Is just how many priests it takes To say the Boston Mass."

"This is the time of running debts, As you may surely know. This secret, then, impart to me: How much does Cleveland owe?"

"In ages, too, you must be learned, More so than many men. So tell me in a whisper, please, When was Miss Nashville Tenn?"

"It takes great heat sold to melt, And iron takes much more. Then is it true that way out west The rain melts Portland Ore?"

"Some voices are so strong and full And some so still and small That I have wondered oftentimes How loud could Denver Col."

"Willis--Why don't you go to church? Willis--Too far. Why don't you go? Willis--We live next door to one and I hate to go all dressed up just to go that little way.--Puck.

"Did you ever try to call a suburban home for what you paid for it?" they asked. Herewith he saw a way to break the spell.--Lucas.

Owen Seaman, editor of Punch, was the principal guest at a dinner of the London Authors' Club recently, which was followed by a discussion on "Humor." Mr. Seaman began with a story deprecating the spilling of a good dinner by any discussion at all.

"What you see in that creature to admire I can't see," said Mrs. Dubb-leigh. "Why she's all made up. Her hair, her figure, her complexion--every bit of her is artificial."

"I want two eggs," said the American; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"Two eggs," said the American, sadly and patiently; "one fried on one side and one on the other."

"More expensive, sir, and another fainter," "Very well, sir."

"See here, doctor," he exclaimed, "I've entirely forgotten my name and where I live, but by the shade of Andrew Jackson, I must be somebody, somewhere, to be carrying around much money as this!"--Success Magazine.

"I'm mighty glad to see this movement for rectitude," said the plain citizen. "It argues for an era of better understanding and kindliness."

"You believe it will develop international friendliness?" "I wasn't thinkin' about foreign countries. But if Canada and the United States can come to a social agreement, maybe we can hope that Chicago and New York will yet have respect for each other."--Washington Star.

But the Sons of the American Revolution may do even better, if they desire to erect a conspicuous memorial to Washington and his men. A light on bridge connects the two towns mentioned. It is not at all pretty and tolls are collected from the public.

A RHYME OF THE CITIES. Said little Johnnie to the owl: "I've heard you're wondrous wise, and so I'd like to question you. Now, please, don't tell me lies."

"The first thing, then, I'd have you tell My empty mind to fill. Pray, was it that explosive beef That made Chicago ill?"

"I've heard it said, yet do not know-- In fact, it may be both-- Then, tell me, is it lots of dirt That makes Seattle Wash?"

"When certain things do not go straight To right them we must try. So maybe you can say what 'tis Sets Providence R. I."

"Another thing I wish I could Inform my waiting class Is just how many priests it takes To say the Boston Mass."

"This is the time of running debts, As you may surely know. This secret, then, impart to me: How much does Cleveland owe?"

"In ages, too, you must be learned, More so than many men. So tell me in a whisper, please, When was Miss Nashville Tenn?"

"It takes great heat sold to melt, And iron takes much more. Then is it true that way out west The rain melts Portland Ore?"

"Some voices are so strong and full And some so still and small That I have wondered oftentimes How loud could Denver Col."

"Willis--Why don't you go to church? Willis--Too far. Why don't you go? Willis--We live next door to one and I hate to go all dressed up just to go that little way.--Puck.

Lots of the Mill End Linoleums, Cuttings From 65c and 75c Kinds, a Square Yard, 25c and 35c

Tomorrow Morning From 9 Until 12 O'Clock Just make a note of these; you will find there's savings.

No Suit Cases Haven't Been Excluded From the Street Cars That was a false alarm. Glad to know this, aren't you?

Foulard Silks Again at 33c These in the most desirable colors, and figured and striped effects, of the season's 65c and 75c kinds.

India Batistes at 10c Some linen-colored grounds, others in pink; then there's greenish and bluish shadings, and there's helio and violet.

Checked Louise Silks, 49c Not an unusual announcement as to price, but the quality is what counts here, and it counts big in favor of this being one of the best summer silk values offered by us for years and years.

American Batistes, 8c Printing and colorings like foreigners, but the cloth is not quite so fine, serviceable-wearing stuffs, though, cool, pleasing, dressy cotton fabrics.

33c for Black Peau de Cygne Silks Entirely free of dressing, a pure silk fabric and of good weight, and 33c. Why, finer quality gingham would cost you as much, or near.

Mercerized Foulard Sea Isle Cottons, 19c Side by side with high-class foulard silks you'd say one and the same. The highly mercerized finish and the figure work favors nothing more strongly than the foulard silks that sell for 75c and 85c.

Yard-wide Black Taffeta Silks, 59c Subject these silks to the closest scrutiny; then tell us if you don't think as we do that they're worth 75c. A lustrous, rustling, deep, beautiful black silk taffeta at a cost--the least, quality considered, you've ever bought them for before, or we're much mistaken.

Not For Long Can We Promise You These $15 Suits at $7.50 Then There's $22.50 and $25 Suits at $14.50 It would be a very unwise man who would continue the manufacturing of suits that represented the loss that's represented in these.

Crisp, Sprightly, Lively Organdie Lawns, 19c Wash Goods

Take the $7.50 suits, if you will--first, they're in many colors and weaves, of finer American materials, and there's many foreign wool fabrics included, too.

Tissue Gingham at 12 1/2c Not often do you meet with a gingham so sheer and fine. What promise of service these gingham give! They have the dressy look of an organdie, with a service that nothing aside from a gingham in cotton goods can give.

The $14.50 suits are all of nicer qualities imported materials every car mark of carefulness that characterizes one of America's foremost makers. Little did this maker think, though, that he would see the time that these suits of his intended to sell at $22.50 and $25, would sell at $14.50.

SP. Dunham & Co. NEWSPAPER ARCHIVE