Fels-Naptha to the Rescue.

Miss Dainty-"Oh, Anty, John and I were coming home in the automobile and something went wrong with the machinery. I got out to help. And—oh dear! the first thing I knew, I was grease and grit from head to foot. My suit is ruined; I know it is."

Antu Drudge-"Don't worry about that, my dear. It isn't so bad at all. A little Fels-Naptha soap and cool or lukewarm water, and that suit will look as good as new in a jiffy. Fels-Naptha has been washing things clean for many years. Now run along and get your beauty sleep, and tomorrow we'll get at that suit with Fels-Naptha."

There's no need of slaving over the wash-tub every Monday morning; and when night comes, so tired out you can't even get a decent meal for your husband.

Try the Fels-Naptha way of washing. It will save you many a Monday backache and headache.

Fels-Naptha has its own peculiarities. It's made with the elbow-grease in it. You don't have to supply it.

The Fels-Naptha way is easy. Easy on the clothes and easy on you.

Just rub the Fels-Naptha on the clothes, roll them up and leave them in cool or lukewarm water for half an hour

Give them a light rub to loosen the dirt, rinse, blue and hang up.

That's all.

Fels-Naptha is the soap that works while you look on.

Think of it-no knuckling down to the washboard—no boiling—no steaming no hard muscle work.

And you're done in half the time, too. Doesn't that mean a whole lot to you?

Read the easy directions on the red and green wrapper. Then follow them closely. Use any time of the year.

Little Miss Wilson rendered the poem without the slightest hesitation. She is only ten years old and is a promising planist. The poem is as follows:

WASHINGTON'S CROSSING.

Washington's Crossing.
Why leave unmarked the famous place
Where Washington once led
His little band of valiant men,
Unclothed, unshod, unfed,
To brave the water's icy snarcs,
That this great nation live,
And yet in memory of that deed
No honor give.

Save for the name, a moss-clad s
No shaft nor columns rise
And yet no spot in this fair land
Is more immortalized.
Is not the greatness of the past
The crossing's cherished fame,
Enough to build a monument
All worthy of the name?

Our country's boundless wealth grows
